Fishing For Litter South West: Survey

KIMO UK is working hard to improve your Fishing for Litter experience. Tim Luck, an MSc student, is carrying out important, practical research that will help us identify what our next steps are.

We host the project in the South West at Seafood Cornwall Training and want to help skippers improve their fishing environment.

Please take a few moments to complete his questionnaire:

Can you help us recruit, train and retain new crew?

Focussing on individual harbours in Cornwall, we are looking for skippers who want to take on new crew, and also for experienced working or retired fishermen who have time to act as on-shore mentors to new recruits to help guide them, and encourage them to learn the new skills required to be efficient deck hands.

Above all we need enthusiastic people who can demonstrate that although fishing is often a difficult job, with focus and commitment it can also be a rewarding and lucrative career through which valuable new skills and qualifications can be gained.
